Describe your target audience:

My target audience for this website are future employers, industry professionals and potential collaborators in the industry that I am studying in which is design and development. The age range of the target audience is around 20-45 years old, are likely based in Singapore and value innovation, aesthetics and purpose-driven design. They are usually involved in fields like graphic design, UI/UX and programming and are looking for emerging designers who can bring fresh ideas to the table.

Describe your brand story/ purpose:

I am a student studying digital design and development, passionate about creating meaningful and visually engaging designs. My interest in design began with a love of creating and storytelling and it has evolved into a deeper interest and understanding on how different elements and components work together to send a message. My goal is to present myself as a thoughtful and versatile designer that resonates with my target audience.

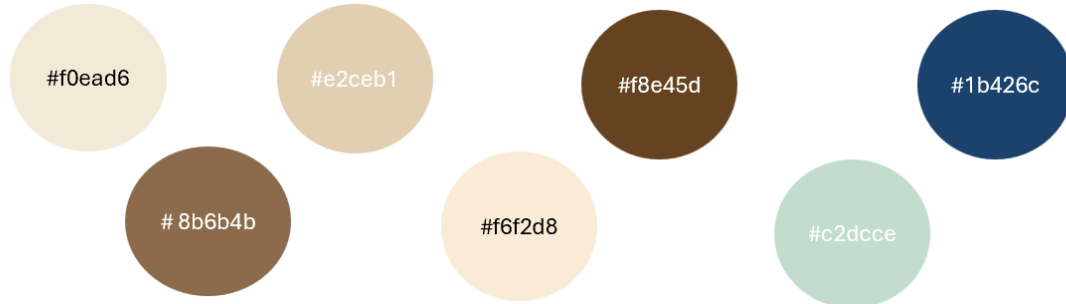

Design brief

Colour scheme & Colour palette:

I have decided on a monochromatic colour scheme which includes shades of brown with small pops of brighter colours to help draw attention to important points of the website.

Here is a base colour scheme:
